This document provides some details of the variety of youth councils and forums that exist across the four local authorities of Hampshire, Isle of Wight, Portsmouth and Southampton.

The directory aims to collate in one place a list of youth councils and forums which young people, practitioners and strategic managers can use to find out where local groups exist. It is assumed that the directory could be used by:

- ⌘ young people moving into the area and wanting to join a group
- ⌘ practitioners to sign post a young person to a local group and to identify groups they can consult with on relevant issues
- ⌘ strategic managers to identify groups they can discuss relevant issues with

The directory has five sections:

Section 1 Introduction Section 2 Participation Section 3 Structures Section 4 Directory
Section 5 Contact Details

Participation means: 'getting involved'. In government terms this means 'All children, young people and families will be actively involved in the planning, delivery and monitoring of services'. Therefore all work with children and young people that enables them to take part can be defined as participation.

Participation activities cover:

- ⌘ Consultation - Children and young people are asked their views. Adults make the decision but take children's and young people's views into account and give feedback about decisions and actions taken.
- ⌘ Representation - Children and young people represent their peers views on an adult-initiated issue. Again adults take views into account and give feedback about decisions and actions.
- ⌘ Decision sharing - Children and young people share responsibility for decision making with adults.
- ⌘ Implementation - Children and young people are given responsibility for a project and the outcomes. Staff support and monitor the progress.
- ⌘ Initiating - Children and young people generate ideas for action and make all the major decisions. Adults are available for consultation, but do not take charge.

Consultation is one aspect of participation but does not constitute participation as a whole. Consultation with young people needs to be done correctly; this means ensuring that a wide range of young people take an active part and feeding back to the young people who have taken part.

In 1989, the United Nations adopted a human rights treaty for children (all those aged 17 and under) the Convention on the Rights of the Child.

The Convention sets out all the things young people need to lead a fulfilling and dignified life including the right to be heard and taken seriously.

Although the emphasis on encouraging young people to participate has increased, the number of children and young people from hard to reach groups is still low. This is the challenge to all services, how do they include all children and young people in the planning, delivery and monitoring of services.

In December 1991 the UK Government ratified the Convention. In doing so, it undertook to make all the rights a reality for all children and young people in England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales.

As well as the Convention, there is a growing range of policy and legislative provisions that further shape children and young people's right to be heard, this includes:

- ⌘ The National Youth Agency who have produced 'hear by right'. This is a tried and tested standards framework for organisations across the statutory and voluntary sectors to assess and improve practice and policy on the active involvement of children and young people.

Governance can mean different things to different people. For some it is how an organisation makes it's decisions, for others it is ensuring that an organisation has policies and procedures that set out how it should operate. In reality, both are two sides of the same coin, as governance represents the processes by which an organisation makes its decisions that set out how it operates.

Adults and children and young people can struggle at times to fully understand governance, what it means and how to apply it to the everyday running of an organisation.

Youth Councils and Boards are one way of engaging young people in governance and can provide a springboard for further involvement in other activities and forums.

The benefits of truly listening to children and young people are widely acknowledged but taking their involvement to the next step can be hard. It is important that all organisations ask themselves:

- ⌘ How do we listen to young people, including how do they want to be consulted?
- ⌘ How are they involved in all levels of our decision-making?
- ⌘ What involvement is appropriate?
- ⌘ How will we tell young people what we have done about their comments and support them to tell other young people what has changed?

Children and young people have a right to be involved in the decisions that affect them. There are so many opportunities for children and young people to take an active part in shaping where they live, the services they use and the running of local and national organisations. Their participation is essential to improve services.

There are now a wide range of tools to encourage effective participation across a range of settings (see useful websites and resources within directory), but fewer to help assess what has been achieved (standards).

Children and young people will benefit by:

- ⌘ better understanding of particular organisations and how to influence them
 - ⌘ new and better services that are more responsive to their needs
 - ⌘ services and policies being designed, delivered and evaluated based on actual rather than presumed needs
 - ⌘ being enabled to experience new situations, take responsibility, develop and practice skills that increase their confidence, self-esteem and personal development
 - ⌘ gaining qualifications and work experience
 - ⌘ having an equal opportunity to participate
 - ⌘ being treated honestly, have their contributions taken seriously and involvement valued
 - ⌘ through experiencing an empowering environment that raises their aspirations and the wider community views
 - ⌘ learning new skills which assist them to positively hold services for young people to account
 - ⌘ being included in the community in which they live
- ⌘ information can be gained from young people as citizens and about their changing attitudes and needs, their views as to what constitutes quality in service provision and barriers

- to accessing services
- ⌘ young people's presence will attract other young people to use the services
- ⌘ young people will respect the service more
- ⌘ add value to front line delivery and reach out to a wider audience of young people
- ⌘ services and policies can be designed, delivered and evaluated based on actual rather than presumed needs
- ⌘ to continually challenge the overall service they are offering
- ⌘ provide an energetic force for change in planning to ensure it is truly responsive and accessible to all young people
- ⌘ fresh perspectives and imaginative ideas about the service

Knowing where to start can be confusing; this directory is a good a place as any. If you would like more information on the above then please contact Connexions or Hampshire County Youth Service, our details are on the back cover.
